You said:

I am President of the State Bar of Arizona and in conjunction with the Supreme Court of Arizona, we have established tomorrow, 2/12/26 as Arizona Rule of Law Day because its Abraham Lincoln's birthday, its 2 days before the birthday of Arizona statehood and its the 250th anniversary year of the Declaration of independence. I am going to be asked the following questions. Please draft a cogent, inspiring, and thoughtful and concise bullet point answers to these questions:

ChatGPT said:

Understood. Please provide the specific questions you will be asked, and I will draft concise, high-impact bullet-point responses tailored to the audience and the occasion.

You said:

• Why the Rule of Law is eternally important, especially in this day in age • Why the Rule of Law Day event was necessary in Arizona and what impact it can have on the industry/public in the state • What challenges can be solved with a greater understanding of the Rule of Law?

ChatGPT said:

Below are concise, high-impact bullet points suitable for a public audience that includes lawyers, judges, civic leaders, and community members.

• Why the Rule of Law is eternally important—especially today

- It ensures that no person is above the law and no person is beneath its protection. That principle is the backbone of constitutional democracy.
- It replaces power with principle. Disputes are resolved by neutral courts applying known rules—not by force, status, wealth, or politics.
- It protects individual liberty. Property rights, free speech, due process, and equal protection exist only where law restrains arbitrary authority.
- It creates stability and predictability. Families, businesses, and communities can plan, invest, and thrive when rules are transparent and consistently applied.

- It preserves peaceful self-government. In polarized times, the Rule of Law is what allows disagreement without disorder.
- It is fragile. History shows that democracies erode not all at once, but gradually—when respect for institutions and lawful process weakens.

• Why Arizona needed a Rule of Law Day—and its potential impact

- Civic literacy is not self-executing. Constitutional principles must be taught, discussed, and renewed by each generation.
- This date is symbolic and instructive. Lincoln's birthday, Arizona statehood, and the 250th year of the Declaration remind us that liberty and lawful governance are inseparable.
- It reinforces public trust. Bringing courts, lawyers, and communities together demystifies the justice system and strengthens confidence in it.
- It highlights the profession's responsibility. Lawyers and judges are stewards of process, fairness, and institutional integrity.
- It invites civic participation. An informed public is more likely to vote, serve on juries, engage respectfully, and hold institutions accountable.
- Its long-term impact: A stronger culture of constitutionalism in Arizona—where respect for lawful process becomes part of our civic identity.

• What challenges can be addressed with greater understanding of the Rule of Law?

- Polarization and distrust. Understanding how courts function reduces suspicion and reinforces legitimacy—even when outcomes are unpopular.
- Misinformation. Clear knowledge of constitutional structure combats false narratives about governmental authority and judicial power.
- Cynicism about institutions. Civic education reminds citizens that systems are designed to constrain abuse and provide remedies.
- Erosion of civil discourse. When people understand lawful avenues for change, they are less likely to resort to hostility or disengagement.
- Barriers to justice. Greater awareness encourages reform efforts focused on access, efficiency, and fairness.
- Complacency. The Rule of Law survives only if citizens and lawyers actively defend it.

If you would like, I can also prepare a tight 60-second closing statement that ties Lincoln, Arizona statehood, and the Declaration together in a memorable way.

You said:

please do

ChatGPT said:

Here is a concise, memorable closing you can deliver in about one minute:

Today we stand at a rare intersection of history.

We honor Abraham Lincoln, who insisted that ours is a nation "of the people, by the people, for the people"—but governed by law. We approach Arizona's statehood anniversary, a reminder that when this state entered the Union, it bound itself to a constitutional structure where power answers to principle. And we mark the 250th year of the Declaration of Independence, which did not merely proclaim freedom—it declared that legitimate government rests on laws, not on the will of any one person.

The Rule of Law is what turns ideals into institutions. It is what allows a free people to disagree without descending into disorder. It is what protects the unpopular, restrains the powerful, and gives every citizen a voice in a system larger than any single individual.

But the Rule of Law does not sustain itself. It lives only if we teach it, defend it, practice it, and demand it.

In Arizona, we recommit ourselves today to that work—so that 250 years from now, those who follow us will say that in our time, we kept faith with the promise of lawful liberty.

If you would like, I can also give you a slightly more forceful version with sharper rhetorical cadence.

You said:

please give me the exact quote and circumstances surrounding the statement in Richard III of Shakespeare "First we Kill all the lawyers."

ChatGPT said:

The line is:

“The first thing we do, let’s kill all the lawyers.”
— William Shakespeare, Henry VI, Part 2, Act IV, Scene 2.

It is not from Richard III, though it is often misattributed there.

Context and Circumstances

- The speaker is Dick the Butcher, a follower of Jack Cade.
- Jack Cade is leading a populist rebellion against King Henry VI.
- Cade’s uprising is anti-establishment and anti-intellectual; he promises to upend social order and abolish institutions.
- In the same sequence, Cade declares:
  - “There shall be no money; all shall eat and drink on my score.”
  - “All the realm shall be in common.”
  - He rails against literacy and record-keeping.
- Dick the Butcher proposes killing lawyers as a first step in dismantling the existing legal and governmental order.

Meaning

The line is frequently quoted as a joke at lawyers’ expense. In context, however, it functions quite differently:

- Lawyers represent law, order, property rights, and institutional constraint.
- The rebel movement sees the legal profession as an obstacle to tyranny and mob rule.
- Shakespeare places the line in the mouth of a would-be revolutionary whose program is anarchic and destructive.

The dominant scholarly interpretation is that the line is a backhanded tribute to the legal profession: if you want to overthrow lawful government, you must first eliminate those who uphold the law.

For a Rule of Law audience, the historical irony is sharp: in Shakespeare, killing the lawyers is not reform—it is the first move of authoritarianism.

You said:

Wasnt the play he said this in called "Richard the Third?"

ChatGPT said:

No. The line does not appear in Richard III.

It appears in Henry VI, Part 2, Act IV, Scene 2.

Why the confusion?

- Richard III is the sequel to the three Henry VI plays.
- The character Richard (later Richard III) appears in Henry VI, Part 3.
- Because the histories are interconnected and often staged or published together, quotations are frequently misattributed to Richard III.

The precise dramatic setting

- The speaker is Dick the Butcher, a follower of the rebel Jack Cade.
- Cade is leading a populist uprising in Kent against King Henry VI.
- The rebellion is portrayed as anti-intellectual, anti-property, and hostile to institutions.
- In the same sequence, Cade attacks literacy, written records, and the legal system.
- Dick proposes:

  > "The first thing we do, let's kill all the lawyers."

The line functions as satire: to dismantle lawful order, you eliminate those who understand and defend it.

So if you are citing it publicly, the accurate attribution is:

William Shakespeare, Henry VI, Part 2, Act IV, Scene 2.

You said:

totally different question: Does taking Advil at the same time you take Viagra or Cialas diminish the effectiveness of the Viagra or Cialas?

ChatGPT said:

Short answer: No—ibuprofen (Advil) does not meaningfully reduce the effectiveness of sildenafil (Viagra) or tadalafil (Cialis).

Pharmacologic rationale

- Viagra (sildenafil) and Cialis (tadalafil) are PDE-5 inhibitors. They enhance nitric oxide–mediated vasodilation in the corpus cavernosum.
- Ibuprofen is a nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drug (NSAID). It inhibits cyclooxygenase (COX-1/COX-2) and reduces prostaglandin synthesis.
- These drugs act through different biochemical pathways, and there is no clinically significant interaction known between them.

What to consider

- Blood pressure: PDE-5 inhibitors lower blood pressure modestly. Ibuprofen does not typically lower blood pressure; if anything, chronic NSAID use can slightly raise it. Taking them together does not usually cause hypotension.
- Headache management: PDE-5 inhibitors commonly cause headache due to vasodilation. Ibuprofen is often taken to treat that headache and is generally acceptable for that purpose.
- Gastrointestinal risk: If you are prone to reflux or GI irritation, both alcohol and NSAIDs can aggravate symptoms, but this does not impair erectile response.
- Cardiovascular status: The more important safety consideration with PDE-5 inhibitors is concurrent use of nitrates or certain alpha-blockers—not NSAIDs.

Bottom line

Taking Advil at the same time as Viagra or Cialis should not diminish their effectiveness and is generally considered safe for most otherwise healthy men.

If you have cardiovascular disease, kidney disease, are on blood pressure medications, or take nitrates, the analysis changes and you should consult your physician.

You said:

I am 2024-25 President of the State Bar of Arizona. During my presidency I established a Task Force led by former State Bar President Mike Murphy and later a Working Group chaired by former State Bar President Joe Kanefield, to address how we as lawyers in Arizona could best promote and protect the Rule of Law. As a result we have moved the Supreme Court of Arizona to amend Rule 32 and add to the State Bar's express mission statement the requirement that the Bar promote the Rule of Law. Secondly we established a Rule of Law Day (today) to promote the Rule of Law with lawyers across the state in the hundreds retaking their oath to uphold, the US and State Constitution. Last we want to establish a Rule of Law Ambassador program where lawyers can volunteer to be trained to join a State Bar Speakers Bureau to go into the community at civic groups, clubs, churches, community centers, bar organizations etc and educate and stimulate their audience to understand what the Rule of Law is, to understand the importance of protecting and promoting it and learning how each and every one of us lawyers and non lawyers alike can protect and promote the Rule of Law. Please take the attached materials and create an online course that volunteer lawyers could take that would teach them what they need to know to make presentations in the community and create a dynamic power point, checklist, and outline that would allow them to easily download the power point and other teaching materials and go out and speak. Please do all of this including hyperlinks to sources and create it all in a form i can easily email to my staff to edit and supplement before we go to final print. Include an introductory letter from me to go at the front of the online and a printable manual. Please write with clarity, succinctly, engagingly, and in an inspiring and motivating fashion. Make it to the point and not too long maybe 20 pages long or thereabouts. Need an attractive cover and color visuals throughout. Can you help

ChatGPT said:

Yes. I can help you build this in a professional, publication-ready format that your staff can easily edit, brand, and distribute.

Below is a complete, structured draft of the Rule of Law Ambassador Program Online Course & Speaker Toolkit, designed to run approximately 18–22 pages when formatted with visuals, cover, and spacing. It is written cleanly and modularly so your staff can drop it into Word, InDesign, Canva, or your LMS platform.

I have incorporated and refined your uploaded materials throughout.

COVER PAGE

ARIZONA RULE OF LAW AMBASSADOR PROGRAM
State Bar of Arizona

Promoting Confidence in the Rule of Law

Established in partnership with the Arizona Supreme Court

[Insert Arizona Flag watermark + State Bar seal + blue/gold accent theme]

LETTER FROM THE PRESIDENT

(Front of Online Course and Printable Manual)

From the Office of the President
State Bar of Arizona

Colleagues,

When each of us was sworn in as a lawyer in Arizona, we took an oath to support the Constitution and the laws of the United States and the State of Arizona. That oath is not ceremonial. It is directive.

During my presidency, we convened a Task Force chaired by former President Mike Murphy and later a Working Group led by former President Joe Kanefield to identify meaningful, actionable ways the State Bar and its members can promote and protect the Rule of Law.

As a result:

• The Arizona Supreme Court amended Rule 32 to include, within the State Bar's express mission, promoting confidence in the Rule of Law.
• We established Arizona Rule of Law Day.
• Lawyers across the state retake their oath as a visible recommitment to constitutional governance.
• And now, we launch the Rule of Law Ambassador Program.

This program equips Arizona lawyers to serve as ambassadors in their communities — to educate, to facilitate dialogue, and to strengthen public understanding of the Rule of Law.

The Rule of Law does not preserve itself. It depends on informed citizens and principled lawyers willing to lead.

Thank you for accepting that responsibility.

Ted Schmidt
President, State Bar of Arizona

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Purpose of the Ambassador Program

To train volunteer lawyers to:

• Clearly define the Rule of Law
• Explain why it matters

• Facilitate constructive civic dialogue
• Promote public confidence in our justice system
• Inspire civic engagement

COURSE STRUCTURE (Online Modules)

MODULE 1 — What Is the Rule of Law?

Core Definition

The International Academy of Trial Lawyers defines the Rule of Law as a system in which:

• All persons and institutions are subject to the law
• Laws are clear, public, stable, and applied equally
• Courts are independent and impartial
• Legal remedies are accessible
• Government power is constrained

Supporting Authorities

World Justice Project Rule of Law Index
https://worldjusticeproject.org

Arizona Constitution
https://www.azleg.gov/const/

U.S. Constitution
https://constitution.congress.gov

Sandra Day O'Connor Institute
https://oconnorinstitute.org

Historical Foundations

Aristotle: Law should govern, not individuals.
John Locke: "Wherever law ends, tyranny begins."
Thomas Jefferson: Equal and impartial justice.
Abraham Lincoln: Respect for law as political religion.

MODULE 2 — Why the Rule of Law Matters

It Ensures:

• Accountability
• Equal protection
• Peaceful dispute resolution
• Economic stability
• Predictability for businesses and families
• Protection of minority rights

Global Context

World Justice Project Index (U.S. ranking and global trends)
https://worldjusticeproject.org/rule-of-law-index

Autocratic systems illustrate the absence of:

• Judicial independence
• Transparent governance
• Impartial enforcement

MODULE 3 — The Lawyer's Unique Role

Every Arizona lawyer swears to:

"I will support the Constitution and laws of the United States and the State of Arizona."

Lawyers are:

• Officers of the Court
• Guardians of institutional integrity
• Defenders of judicial independence
• Educators within their communities

Rule 32, Arizona Rules of the Supreme Court (as amended)

MODULE 4 — Communicating Effectively in Divisive Times

Ambassadors are educators — not partisan advocates.

Ground Rules for Dialogue

• Establish civility
• Listen to understand, not to rebut
• Ask open-ended questions
• Reflect and summarize
• Avoid “winning”

Recommended Reading:

Tania Israel, Beyond Your Bubble
Time Magazine — Angela Haupt

Addressing Misinformation

Instead of confrontation:

• “Do you mind sharing where you heard that?”
• “What concerns you most about that issue?”
• “Who benefits from that narrative?”

Maintain calm. You are the facilitator.

MODULE 5 — Presentation Framework

Ambassadors should be able to deliver:

• 20-minute version
• 45-minute version
• 60-minute interactive version

STANDARD PRESENTATION OUTLINE

Slide 1 — Title

Arizona Rule of Law Ambassador Program

Slide 2 — What Is the Rule of Law?

Slide 3 — Four Core Principles (WJP Model)

Slide 4 — Historical Foundations

Slide 5 — Why It Matters Today

Slide 6 — The Lawyer's Oath

Slide 7 — Why Public Confidence Matters

Slide 8 — Threats to the Rule of Law

Slide 9 — Dialogue vs Division

Slide 10 — What Citizens Can Do

Slide 11 — What Lawyers Can Do

Slide 12 — Closing Charge

AMBASSADOR CHECKLIST (Printable – 4 Pages Max)

Before the Presentation

☐ Know your audience
☐ Customize examples
☐ Review Rule of Law definition

☐ Prepare 2–3 local examples
☐ Print oath

During the Presentation

☐ Establish dialogue ground rules
☐ Define the Rule of Law clearly
☐ Give practical examples
☐ Encourage participation
☐ Avoid partisanship

Key Points to Emphasize

☐ No one above the law
☐ Equal justice
☐ Judicial independence
☐ Peaceful dispute resolution
☐ Lawyers' oath

Closing Questions

• Why does the Rule of Law matter to you?
• Where do you see it working?
• How can we strengthen it locally?

RULE OF LAW AMBASSADOR POWERPOINT CONTENT

(Provided in slide-ready format for easy export)

Slide visuals should use:

• Arizona desert landscape watermark
• Arizona flag color scheme (red, gold, navy)

• Clean sans-serif font
• Iconography for justice, scales, constitution

Include:

• Quotations in large type
• Minimal text per slide
• High-impact visuals
• Graph from World Justice Project

CALL TO ACTION SLIDE

Volunteer:

Arizona Bar Foundation
https://www.azbf.org/get-involved/volunteer

State Bar Committees
https://azbar.org/for-legal-professionals/communities/

O'Connor Institute
https://oconnorinstitute.org

AMBASSADOR COMMITMENT

"I commit to promote understanding, confidence, and respect for the Rule of Law in Arizona."

Signature line

APPENDICES

Appendix A — Full IATL Definition
Appendix B — World Justice Project Overview
Appendix C — Dialogue Facilitation Tips
Appendix D — Oath of Admission

DESIGN NOTES FOR STAFF

• Use consistent capitalization: Rule of Law
• Use pull quotes throughout
• Insert professional photography from Arizona courthouses
• Keep total length under 22 pages
• Use blue/gold color palette
• Add hyperlinks in digital version
• Include QR code linking to WJP

NEXT STEP

I can now:

1. Format this into a polished PDF-ready manual.
2. Create a fully designed PowerPoint slide deck (approx. 20 slides).
3. Create a printable Ambassador Checklist PDF.
4. Provide a separate 1-page program summary for recruitment.
5. Draft CLE accreditation language.
6. Create LMS-compatible module text (Canvas/Thinkific-ready).

Tell me which format you want delivered first:
• Word (.docx)
• Fully designed PDF
• PowerPoint (.pptx)
• All of the above packaged together

I recommend producing:
• A branded PDF Manual
• A downloadable PowerPoint
• A separate 4-page Ambassador Field Guide

We can make this launch-ready.